SEVEN ACRES OF NORTHROP LOOMS

in the new weave room of the Naumkeag Steam Cotton Company, Salem, Mass., bear conclusive evidence of their superiority for weaving the well known Pequot sheetings and pillow tubing. Our illustrations give but an approximate idea of the vastness of the weave room. The following letter from Mr. Wm. P. McMullan, agent of the Naumkeag Steam Cotton Company is significant.

Mr. W. I. Stimpson, Agent,
Draper Company,
Hopedale, Mass.

My dear Mr. Stimpson:

Every loom, 2644, running at two p. m, Thursday, Feb. 10!

The fire occurred June 25, 1914. We started the first loom in shed Dec. 21st, 1914. This means that you and we have averaged starting over 44 looms per week for 60 weeks! I believe it is a most wonderful achievement and most creditable to everyone.

I thank you and everybody connected with the Draper Company for the prompt attention and intense interest manifested in enabling Naumkeag to obtain its normal production in so short a time. Over 200,000 lbs of cloth last week!

Yours truly,
WM. P. McMULLAN, Agent.
